This issue of THE EX^XONENT was produced with the help of the following people:
Chief Editor and Typist: Richard Kovalcik
Editorial Consultants: David Gladstein and Ira Rosen
Mimeograph Operators: Joel Cohen and Fred Brenner
plus of course all the people who submitted articles and those who stood ~~and~~ the side and coached.

PLEASE NOTE: THE EXPONENT IS NORMALLY MIMEOGRAPHED, BUT BECAUSE I ESTIMATED THE NEED FOR TOO FEW COPIES, I AM SENDING YOU A XEROX OF THE EXPONENT. IF YOU DECIDE TO TRADE WITH US, I WILL SEND YOU A MIMEO COPY NEXT ISSUE.

the EXPONENT

Feb. 7, 1975

Volume I, Number 10

This is "The Exponent", the publication of the John Dewey High School Strategic Games Club(JDHSSGC). It is provided free to all Dewey students and teachers who want it, to all outsiders who write articles for publication in "The Exponent", and to all people with whom we trade for other zines. Otherwise it is ten issues for one dollar except in cases where postage is extraordinary, in which case the difference in postage will be split between the zine and the recipient. The zine is delivered by First Class Mail within the US and by Air Mail outside the US (Yes, I know that Quebec is closer than Los Angeles but the difference is miniscule).

Some of the press and articles contained in this issue are:

1. Correct Calmer Notation by Ira Rosen
2. The G.P. (Gorin Press not General Practitioner) by Mike Gorin
3. Reactions by Robert Bryan Lipton
4. Kaiser Wilhelm's Victory Speech by Ira Ewen(1974HA)
5. Sultan Gubitosa's Victory Speech by Mat Gubitosa(1974IE)

This issue is a transition issue. A new editor, and co-editor, namely myself: Richard Kovalcik, Jr. and my main slave: Pauline S. Powledge II respectively; are in the process of taking over from David Gladstein. I will be the official editor as soon as I am elected editor by the members of the JDHSSGC. Therefore effective immediately please send all magazines, money, and other goodies to

Will all Dewey teachers who are receiving this zinc for the first time please place a note for the editor in Mrs. O'Meara's mailbox if you wish to continue getting it.

Well now for diplomacy. To date 17 games have been started at Dewey. These are 1974HA, 1974HV, 1974IE, 1974IF, and 1975e¹⁻¹³. I would appreciate it if Boardman Numbers would be assigned to these last 13 games as soon as possible. 1974HA, 1974HV, 1974IE are now all finished. 1974IF Fall 1901 moves are enclosed somewhere in this issue. Due to the great volume of 1975e games, I will only publish the complete moves to 1975e¹¹ and 1975e¹³. For all other 1975e games I will only publish the number of supply centers controlled by each country at the end of each year. I have chosen to publish the complete moves to e¹¹ and e¹³ because supposedly these are the two best games going on with all Dewey players. I will include Press from other 1975e games.

Within the 1975e games there have been two major fiscos to date. The first occurred when Mike Lazar (no relation to the head of the Taxi and Limo Commission) resigned as gamesmaster of 1975e⁶. Actually he did not resign; he just disappeared. We finally convinced (under the threat of death) Pauline S. Powledge II to become the new gamesmaster. The other major fisco occurred when Bill Seligman was exiled from the Math Department for gross incompetency and having a loose mouth. At the time he was the GM of two games. David Gladstein was supposed to take these games over but Mr. B.S. managed to convince the JDHSSGC to let him have the games back. After all who would want such messes.

THE BIG SEVEN DOOMED

by Mike Gorin

10/17/02 (GP: Gorin Press not General Practitioner, you idiots) Rome, Italy- In his annual peace message to the world here today Pope Leo XIII proclaimed that he was appalled at the strife and bloodshed that has manifested itself throughout Europe these recent years. He attributed it to the endless aggressiveness of the Big Seven. Insisting that the time had come for a major change in world affairs, he called upon the small nations and oppressed peoples of the world to rise up and put these seven (and we know them well), in their places.

In the U.S., however, the opinion seems to be that the Pope is only announcing the beginning of something that has been brewing for months. In the U.S. at this time are the deposed and exiled leaders of almost all the countries now occupied by the Big Seven. The plan is to smuggle these leaders back into their respective (once neutral) countries, where they will establish underground movements whose sole aim is to overthrow their oppressors and eventually join in a coordinated action destined to destroy the power of Austria-Hungary, England, France, Germany, Italy, Russia, and Turkey forever.

Included among these leaders are such once well known names as Charles I of Portugal, Alphonso XII of Spain, Leopold II of Belgium, George I of Greece, Ferdinand I of Bulgaria, Alexander of Serbia, Charles I of Rumania, Christian IX of Denmark, Oscar II of Sweden and Norway, ... The Swiss have offered the use of their National Militia.

The only people not represented are the Dutch. As we all know, the popularity of their Queen Wilhelmina was offset by the anti-Derman sentiment which developed after her marriage to Prince Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. After the takeover of Holland by the Germans, the Queen stayed in Holland. Last we heard, she was doing "I'm Vilhelmina, fly me", commercials for "the Baron". However, there is already an active underground in the Netherlands.

The first effects of this world-wide movement have already been seen. In Scandinavia, a tremendous underground is already operating. In Spring '02, Russian troops kicked English ones out of Norway. So frightened were they, however, of what they thought was going to break at any moment, that they high-tailed it back to Russian turf, leaving Norway still officially British, but, to the glee of the Norwegians, vacant of foreign military personnel.

So hot is it getting in Denmark and Sweden, too, that units there, claiming direct orders, of course, from William II and Nicolas II, respectively both, decided that the grass was greener on the other side. Tough luck, fellas.

This reporter will keep you informed.

The Joel

Once upon a dippy dreary while I pondered weak and weary,
I saw what did seem, a rather excellent scheme.
In a vision or a dream,
Was the perfect team.
So lovely it made me dance.
Against Germany: England and France.
A little convoy, by an enemy envoy.
With no retort, and a lack of support.
To England and France will go
Belgium, Holland, and Kiel in a row.
So these few lines of verse,
Will serve as a Herse,
For poor little Joel.
Who is now in a hole.

1974H1 Press:

The Kaiser gratefully acknowledges the self-sacrifice of the noble French and English in destroying the menace of the Holy Turk. Germany could not have averted the world war without their help and in recognition of this the Kaiser is establishing Regencies in France and England under minimal German supervision with the expectation of withdrawing from the capitals of his allies by 1970. The Kaiser declares the French and English Regencies cowinners. President Theodore Roosevelt of the United States has suggested that he would like input into the final solution in Europe. A combined German-English-French-Neo-Turkish armada is leaving for New York immediately for conferences. Deutschland uber alles.

Kaiser Wilhelm

1974IE Press:

NOTICE: TO THE SUBJECTS OF THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE.

May you all be congratulated upon your realization that it was useless to resist the mighty Ottoman Empire. Europeans, you will fare well under your new ruler's - the benefits of Islam will bestow themselves upon you - your souls will be cleansed, and your evil ways will pass from you. Needless to say, all are expected to follow the teachings of Mohammed in addition to small royalties to be paid to Constantinople.

Of the noble Italians, little can be said. Their behavior during the last outbreak of hostilities was most cooperative. Hence they have the gift of self-government, with no intervention. They are, however, as all, still subject to the above requirement.

England, France, and Germany, though they will not enjoy the blessing Allah has given Italy, will be treated fairly. Austria-Hungary, however, due to their treachery, simply cannot be trusted. They will have to be under a tight military government until further notice.

Allah, praised be his name, will not let us say what is in our minds concerning those that call themselves Russians. All that can be said is that the entire population is currently being "resettled". The conditions in their urban centers has made it necessary that these be razed. It is the will of Allah.

ARTICLES;

REACTION

by Robert Bryan Lipton

"Went down to the mailbox and got out the mail
When I saw the gamezine I let out a wail
Thought he'd been truthful
Now I'm feeling rueful.
My ex-ally's putting in the screws.
I'm suff'rin' from the extra-special Oh-My God
Was low-down I've-been-stabbed-again Blues"

Speaking with the Nestorian wisdom of a survivor of nearly four years in this hobby let me say the one thing that has been surprising me for those four years is the reaction of someone who's just been stabbed. Although the above lyrics have not yet been put to music I feel it's only a matter of time. I can hear it being sung by someone in a hurt, whining voice. Say Bob Dylan.

I've seen some strange reactions from people who've been stabbed. Some have cried; some have attempted physical violence. I know of a couple of friendships broken up because one friend stabbed the other.

All this seems a strange reaction to me. The guy who just stabbed you keeps telling you that this is a game. And he is right. Two friends can go for years playing chess, thinking nothing of checkmating each other. A draw, they will agree, is for the times when neither can win. Such is Diplomacy.

I suppose it's the make-up of the game. Chess is a purely tactical game; Diplomacy is very strongly a game of interpersonal relations. It's also due partly, I'm sure to the fact that many players take this game of ours too seriously.

Once we've agreed one should not take a stab personally, how should we react to one? After all, if it's there, it's there.

Diplomacy is a game of interpersonal relations. The more facts you have on a player the better able you'll be to anticipate what he'll do. Certainly after someone has stabbed you once you'll be careful to not leave yourself completely open to him in another game. That's simply a matter of common sense.

But Diplomacy is also a game of realpolitik. If you can use someone who's stabbed you and he can use you it is folly to attack him blindly. Because after a while people will begin to notice this and it will give them a handle on you. They'll be able to count on your reaction when you're put in a game with someone who has stabbed you. That's bad.

Consider this also: When you go into a game there should be six people with whom you can work towards your ultimate goal of winning. If you insist on revenging yourself automatically on a stabber and you're put in another game with him your chances go down. If you're fanatic about your revenge you may find yourself in a completely untenable position because of your insistence.

That's two strikes against you automatically and there are six other players ready and able to fan you so that they can win.

So don't be pig-headed about being stabbed. If the necessity arises, be willing to ally with the guy again. After all it may give you the opportunity to stab him! (Robert Bryan Lipton publishes the Mixu Maxu Gazette out for Lafayette College in Easton Pa.)

CORRECT CALMER NOTATION

by Ira Rosen

The first three letters of any space on the "Dipply" board are used to represent them in order to abbreviate the writing of orders. These abbreviations will always be unique except in the following cases where the first three letters are the same:

Longhand	Abbreviations
North Sea	Nth
Norwegian Sea	Nrg or Nwg
Norway	Nwy
North Atlantic Ocean	Nat or NAt
North Africa	Naf or NAF
Tyrrhenian Sea	Tyr
Tyrolia	Tyr or Tyo
Liverpool	Liv
Livonia	Liv

The Tyrrhenian Sea and Tyrolia are so totally unrelated, because one is solely accessible to fleets and one to armies, that Tyrolia is generally abbreviated as Tyr. The inaccessibility between Liverpool and Livonia enable them to have the same abbreviation.

There are also certain exceptions which involve utilizing the first three letters of the space. They are indicated below:

Longhand	Abbreviations
Gulf of Bothnia	Bot
Gulf of Lyon	Lyo

When writing orders, it is necessary to include which coastline the fleets may be utilizing. The three coastal territories where this must be done are:

St. Petersburg - (nc) or (sc)

Spain - (nc) or (sc)

Bulgaria - (ec) or (sc)

This concludes the discussion on Proper Calmer Notation, now for something more interesting ...

(The editor wishes to add that if you are ever in doubt as to the correct Calmer Notation for a move, it is better to write the move out in longhand than to write it incorrectly in Calmer Notation)

IMPORTANT NOTE!

THE JDHSSCC REORGANIZES AND EXPANDES!

The first two acts of the John Dewey High School Strategic Games Club's new president was the addition of an Instructional League (the former RDC) which has many ramifications, and the development of an Executive Board.

The ramifications of the Instructional League are as follows:

- 1) A second vice-president who is solely responsible for the Instructional League, and who is under the supervision of the club president. Second V.P.: Bill Seligman.
- 2) Any person who wants to join the SCC must now begin in the Instructional League, and then advance into the regular league.
- 3) The Instructional League will be located within the Science Resource Center, and the regular league will remain in the Mathematics Resource Center.

The Executive Board will make the final decisions on any controversial issues by a majority vote (4/6). The board will consist of:

The Faculty Advisor, Mr. Ira Ewen
The President, Ira Rosen
The First Vice-President, Michael Gorin
The Second Vice-President, Bill Seligman
The Editor of The Exponent, Richard Kovalcik
The Ombudsman, David Gladstein.
